Founded in 2000, EADS regroups the activities of Daimler Chrysler Aerospace, Aerospatiale Matra and CASA in the field of aerospace and defense. Numbering over 100,000 employees, EADS has thus become the second Aerospace and Defense Company in the world and the first in Europe, while being present in 37 different countries. EADS revenues in 2001 reached $30.8 bn.

As a manufacturer of civilian as well as military aircrafts, such as the world-renowned Airbus family, the Eurofighter or the A 400M, EADS has a long standing experience in embedding navigation systems onboard its products. Moreover, EADS is specifically committed to the Galileo Project through its space division Astrium, which is the main partner for the development of the European GNSS program. Astrium is a leader in the field of space technology, and participates in Galileo Industrie.

EADS is Europe's Premier Aerospace and Defense Systems Provider
